NOW YOU KNOW

By United Press International
Venus, Earth's closest planetary neighbor, has a diameter 200 miles less than the earth and moves about the sun at a mean distance of 67 million miles in 225 of our days, according to the American Museum-Hayden Planetarium.

Mariner-2 Shot Toward Venus, 'Mystery Planet'

By ALVIN B. WEBB JR.
United Press International
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — U. S. scientists today shot a gold-and-silver-plated instrument package toward Venus, and said it may reach within 100,000 miles of the "mystery planet."

The 447-pound space probe, named Mariner-2, was hurled free of earth's gravitational pull by a 130-ton Atlas-Agena rocket launched at 2:53 a.m. (EDT).

Mariner-2 is a mechanical explorer which, at the end of its 181-million-mile voyage, may help scientists determine whether life could exist on Venus, earth's nearest planetary neighbor.

Federal space agency scientists said Mariner-2 will reach within 60,000 miles of Venus. But the spacecraft carried a special "mid-course guidance" rocket which could sharpen the accuracy considerably.

Scientists plan to fire the mid-course rocket about eight days from now, and there is a chance it will swing Mariner-2 around so it will reach within 100,000 miles of the cloud-covered surface of Venus.

An early small but significant guidance error—possibly caused by a slight waver in the 10-story booster rocket during lift-off—dimmed the hopes that scientists had of putting Mariner-2 to within 10,000 to 30,000 miles of the planet.

But it still ranks as one of the most spectacular successes in U. S. space exploration. The closest that any American probe had ever approached a planet previously was 8 million miles—the distance that Pioneer-3 came to Venus after it was launched in March, 1960.

Scientist cautioned "we still have a long way to go," but said "the mid-course guidance should make a big difference. We are extremely pleased by this shot so far."

The space agency said five hours after blast-off that "all systems on Mariner-2 are working normally" and that "we still have a long way to go."

Mariner-2 should make its closest approach to Venus on Dec. 14, and then bypass the planet to swing into a huge orbit around the sun.

Venus is something of an unknown planet—the enigma of the solar system, earth's closest planetary neighbor and yet the most mysterious because of the fixed clouds that perpetually hide its surface.

Mariner-2 carried six scientific instruments that form an electronic "eye" to peer through the clouds and find out what under them.

What is "down there" is meaningful because it will help answer one of science's oldest riddles—Is there life on other planets, or is earth unique in this respect? Venus and Mars are the only two members of the solar system considered to have even a slim chance of possessing life as we know it.

Mariner-2 was designed to scan Venus and find out what its temperature is, whether there is any oxygen and water in its atmosphere, and what its surface is like. These are three of the most important considerations in estimating whether conditions are right for life.

The shot today ranks as perhaps the most complex ever attempted by the United States. The idea is to intercept Venus—a task equivalent to launching a speeding bullet Mariner-2 at seven miles per second from a platform earth itself traveling around the sun at better than 18 miles per second.

Authorities noted that Jacqueline Rose, 19, a known companion of two suspects, grew up in nearby Paoli and is familiar with the area.

They said the decision on whether to organize a massive search rested in Cincinnati, the district headquarters, and Washington.

TOBACCO ADVISORY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The tobacco-curing advisory for Kentucky and southern Indiana, prepared by the U. S. Weather Bureau in cooperation with the University of Kentucky and Purdue University.

Drier air spreading over the area will give generally good conditions for curing burley tobacco today and Tuesday. To take full advantage of this good weather, farmers need only open tobacco barn ventilators during the day and close them at night.

After the weekend rains, it would be wise to make an especially close check on tobacco for the next few days.

No exceptionally dry air is expected over the area and there may be a few spots where good curing conditions will not prevail.

Postal Inspectors To Comb Mines For $1.5 Million

MILLTOWN, Ind. (UPI) — Police and postal inspectors today were expected to continue searching limestone mines where it was believed some of the $1.5 million from the Aug. 14 mail truck hijacking at Plymouth, Mass., may be hidden.

A preliminary search of the area was made Saturday, but it was suspended Sunday. However, curiosity seekers swarmed over the area, and it was feared they might inadvertently wipe out clues to where the money might be.

The investigation began Saturday when a Louisville, Ky., man reported seeing three cars near a cave entrance a few days ago. He said two of the cars carried Massachusetts license plates, and the other was from Kentucky.

The man, not yet identified, said three men came out of a cave and drove off separately in the cars.

"The United States and the United Kingdom cannot em-

Tummy's Pitching Could Pay Off For Twins; Yankees Falter

By FRED DOWN

United Press International

That bulge around no-hit Jack Kralick's tummy could pay off in world series vittles for the Minnesota Twins.

It's a long shot, of course, but it is harder to believe than the New York Yankees losing six straight games with the pennant in their grasp . . . or the Cincinnati Reds' drive on the National League flag being stopped by a Hoston Colt team which had lost nine straight games?

Or, for that matter than that Jack Kralick of Youngstown, Ohio, should pitch the fifth inning of the big league season—setting a record for the lively ballers and missing by a ninth-inning walk the first perfect game in regular-season play since 1922?

It's been that kind of a season
— so don't count out the Twins who are only three games out of first place in the American League with five weeks of the season left to be paced off.

Kralick, 26, who was "beefed up" to 175 pounds this year in hopes of adding to his stamina, pitched his classic 1-0 victory against the Kansas City Athletics Sunday. Kralick pitched a perfect game for 8 1/2 innings before walking George Alusik. He then retired the final two batters to miss by Alusik's walk the first regular-season perfect game since Charley Robertson pitched one in 1922.

Twins Move Up

The victory moved the Twins to within three games of the Yankees, whose 2-1 loss in Baltimore ran their losing streak to six games. The second-place Angels, three games behind the Yankees and .001 ahead of Minnesota, beat the Chicago White Sox, 4-0, the Cleveland Indians whipped the Boston Red Sox, 10-5 and 4-0, and the Washington Senators scored a 5-2 victory after losing to the Detroit Tigers 5-3, in other A.L. games.

The Reds, who had won 32 of 40 previous games, were sandbagged by the Colts, 2-1, behind the five-hit pitching of George Brunet and 6-4 on Johnny Temple's two-run ninth-inning single.

They fell 4 1/2 games off the pace but could rebound suddenly because they open a three-game series with the first-place Dodgers
Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

The Dodgers retained their 2 1/2 game lead with a 16-5 victory over the New York Mets while the San Francisco Giants topped the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-4. The Chicago Cubs beat the Milwaukee
Braves, 4-1, and the Pittsburgh Pirates gained a 7-6 victory after losing to the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-5, in other N.L. action.

Robin Roberts pitched a five-hitter and Brooks Robinson and Jim Gentile homered for the Orioles who won the five-game series with the Yankees. Tony Kubek's second-inning homer was the only Yankee run.

Lee Thomas drove in three runs with a triple and single and Don Lee pitched an eight-hitter for the Angels as White Sox' lefty Frank Baumann suffered his fifth defeat against six wins.

Indians Take Opener

The Indians rolled to their first game victory as Bobba Phillips knocked in four runs with a single and a homer and then Dick Donovan pitched a two-hitter for his 17th win of this season and the 100th of his major league career.

Homers by Bill Bruton, Norm Cash and Steve Boros led the Tigers to their first game win but then the Senators bounced back behind the eight-hit pitching of Claude Osteen.

Maury Wills stole his 70th, 71st and 72nd bases of the season—eight short of Bob Bescher's N.L. record — and Tim Lincecum and Willie Davis homered for the Dodgers who scored 12 unearned runs as a result of five Met errors.

Jack Sanford went 6 1/2 innings to win his 12th straight game and 18th of the season for the Giants whose seven-hit attack was led by homers by Orlando Cepeda and Felipe Alou. Art Mahaffey, seeking his 18th victory, suffered his 11th defeat.

Dick Ellsworth's six-hit pitching enabled the Cubs to top the Braves and Bob Skinner's two-run homer sparked the Pirates to their second game win after Bill White's two-run eighth - inning homer lifted the Cardinals to their first game victory.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Census Bureau reported Sunday that state and local governments collected about one-third of all taxes last year, continuing an upward trend that started after World War II.

LAST CHANCE VALLEY BY WILLIAM HEUMAN

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

After seven days of mounting odds, Thorpe McAfee was resigned to the prospect of dying in the desert. He and Jim Varney had been double-crossed by their two partners in working a claim in the foothills of the Funeral Range. The pair had gone on with the gold dust and the horses, leaving Thorpe and Jim to die.

When Thorpe's terrible eyes fell upon a beautiful girl who came out of the desert to offer water from a canteen, he could not believe his eyes. It was a miracle. But the girl and the water were real. Thorpe and Jim were taken to a cabin by the girl Fern O'Hara, whose mother he had stalked a month earlier. She was determined to raise money to work the find.

CHAPTER 4

FOR MORE than an hour after they went up to the stone house, Thorpe McAfee lay on his blanket, staring into the darkness. After a while he fell asleep, but he didn't sleep very long.

A bright moon had risen during the course of the evening, and the moonlight coming through the single small window in the hut fell across his face.

He was fully awake, lying on his back, and staring upward, when he heard a slight movement outside. He lay still, listening carefully, fancying that his imagination was playing tricks with him.

There were no animals to growl around a house in Death Valley, and it was inconceivable that any human beings could be in the vicinity at that hour of the night.

Fern O'Hara had assured them that aside from the horse wagons moving by on the road during the day, there was no other traffic. Only a fool entered Death Valley at this season of the year unless he had business.

Then Thorpe heard the sound again and sat up, pushing aside the blanket and reaching for the Colt which he'd placed on the floor beside him.

He remembered that earlier that day he'd been tempted to discard the gun because it had been that much more weight to carry, and his strength had been about gone.

Jim Varney had actually tossed aside his own gunbelt, and he'd arrived at the O'Hara place weaponless.

Thorpe glanced over at Varney, who was lying on his side, breathing heavily, sleeping the sleep of complete exhaustion. Rising to his feet without a sound, gun in hand, Thorpe stepped gently to the window, keeping back out of sight.

He heard the sound again, this time identifying it as the footsteps of a man making his way around the corner of the hut. As he looked out of the window he saw the shadow of a man move by, rifle in hand.

He remembered then that Fern had told them that there had been attempts made to jump her claim, and that she'd had to shoot and kill one man.

Thorpe was positive that this was the attempt to drive the girl out of the valley.

Stepping carefully toward the door, which was open, Thorpe waited. Eventually the man moved past him, less than ten feet away, and made his way cautiously toward the low stone wall of the corral, where he crouched down, face toward the house.

Thorpe watched him as he lifted the rifle over the corral wall, lining it on the door of the house. The bushwhacker was now about thirty or forty feet away, his back toward Thorpe.

Anger boiling inside of him, Thorpe waited for the man's next move.

As Thorpe watched, he was surprised to see the man lift a hand and wave several times. He frowned, knowing now that the killer had not come alone.

There were at least two of them, Thorpe, waiting to bushwhack the girl.

On the far side of the house, Thorpe could now make out a faint movement under the cottonwood trees. Then he saw a figure emerging from the trees and heading toward the right of the house. The maneuvers began to make sense now. They were going to set up Miss O'Hara, one man drawing her out of the house, and then the one by the corral dropping her with a rifle shot.

PULLING back the hammer of the Colt, Thorpe waited, and then he saw the man under the cottonwoods throw something toward the house. He heard the sound as the stone struck the wooden wall, and then it was repeated as the killer tossed another stone.

The door of the shack suddenly swung open, and Thorpe heard Fern call sharply, "Who is that? Come out into the open."

She was smart enough to stay inside, however, waiting for the bushwhackers to reveal themselves. Thorpe raised his gun slowly, and then he called gently: "Try this direction first, Jack."

He was ready when the bushwhacker jerked around, facing the hut in a sitting position. The man fired wildly because he could not see Thorpe in the shadows.

Two of his slugs smashed into the stone wall, and then Thorpe fired once and the bushwhacker sat back against the corral wall, his gun limp in his lap.

Inside the hut, Varney was yelling, "Thorpe—Thorpe!" Thorpe called to him, "Stay inside, Jim."

Another bullet whacked into the stone wall, ricocheting off, whining as it whipped past Thorpe's head.

He fired now at the man over by the cottonwoods, and then a rifle cracked from the doorway of the O'Hara shack, and a man stumbled out of the shadows, dropped to his knees and started to crawl forward like a stricken lizard. He was hurt badly, but even so he lifted his gun and fired in the general direction of the house.

Thorpe lifted his own gun, not sure if he should try to finish this wounded man, and then the side-banged again from the doorway, and the wounded killer slumped forward on his face and lay still in the sand, the bright moonlight gleaming on the metal barrel.

Thorpe said to Jim Varney, "All clear. Come out now, Jim."

Varney came out of the hut, rubbing his eyes, and asked, "Indian attack?"

"Worse than that," Thorpe growled. "White murderers."

He watched Fern O'Hara coming toward the hut from the direction of the house, pausing once to look down at the man she'd shot, and then coming on again.

Thorpe moved out into the moonlight, walking toward the dead man at the corral. The man on the ground was thin, lean-faced, with a long, narrow chin. Thorpe had never seen him before. When Fern came up he asked, "Know them?"

The girl shook her head. "Plenty of money back in Piedmont these days," she said with-out emotion, "to hire a dozen like these two. They came out here to see if they could break me." She looked at Thorpe then and said curiously, "You saw him first?"

"I heard this one coming up," Thorpe stated. "When I heard the other one trying to draw your fire, I called this one out."

Jim Varney said peevishly, "Why didn't you wake me, Thorpe?"

"You were unarmed," Thorpe explained, "and two men make more noise than one."

Fern O'Hara said, "You've evened up the score now, Mr. McAfee."

Thorpe shrugged. "I don't like to see anybody bushwhacked," he said, "any more than you like to see a man die of thirst."

He watched her pump a shell out of her gun, and he was remembering how she'd finished off the wounded man near the cottonwood trees. He knew that he never could have done that. He asked, "How long do you think you can hold out like this? There'll be more around like these two."

"I'll hold out," Fern told him, "until I'm ready to move out."

Varney had stepped over to have a look at the other dead man. And Thorpe said, "Reckon I'd rather see you alive, ma'am, than dead."

CHECKPOINT CHECKMATE—A U.S. Army officer talks to a Soviet officer in an armored car at Checkpoint Charlie in Berlin during the four hours Soviet vehicles were held up for refusing an American military escort. Three Soviet armored cars crossed to relieve the guard at the Soviet War Memorial in the Western Sector, but not before they finally had a U.S. military police escort. (Radio photo)

ECONOMIC GROWTH STUNTED

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon said Friday the outdated federal tax structure is stunting economic growth.

Dillon told the House - Senate Economic Committee that the present tax system keeps the economy from achieving full employment and should be overhauled. He called on Congress and the executive branch to rewrite the tax code.

HEAT TEST SCHEDULED

EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (UPI)—Air Force Maj. Bob Rushworth was to take the X15 manned rocket ship through a blazing heat transfer experiment Monday at speeds up to 3,400 miles an hour.

The test, programmed for 90,000 feet was cancelled Friday because of poor weather.

Temperatures are expected to reach 1,100 to 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit in the test to determine how air friction "hot spots" change to different sections of the plane during several difficult maneuvers.

Skirts Only Consistency In Designs

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — New York's top designers serve up a smorgasbord of silhouettes in fashions for fall and winter.

Their one consistency: in daytime skirt lengths. They're still hugging the kneecap. Even Guy Duvier, the designer for the New York wholesale division of Christian Dior, Paris, elected to provide a little of everything in his collection instead of choosing one theme and sticking with it.

Dior late Wednesday showed slim skirts, pleated skirts, paneled skirts, gathered skirts, flared skirts, and the "scissors" skirt with an inverted pleat, shaped at the waistline center front like the hinge portion of the scissors, and widening out like scissor blades to the hemline.

More Length
Jackets for daytime costumes and suits showed a tendency to more length, in the several double-breasted ones three quarter length, and always topping pencil slim skirts.

This house also showed longer sleeves on jackets and coats — some of them actually coming all the way to the wrist — a change in the garment district where the elbow or mid-forearm length has reigned for several seasons.

Dior's suit jackets casually skim over the figure, except for those three-quarter length numbers which flared out over the hips. The firm used fur scarves and boas in abundance for both daytime and evening. Other fur touches showed in the hats, also by Dior, some of them bulky snoods of mink.

Leather Proves Popular
Leather also proved popular with Duvier, who used wide leather belts even on late day dress. A reptile skin of printed black and copper made a trench-type rain coat with matching beret.

Favorite shape for evening with Dior was the princess — narrow through bustline, unfitted and shaped in only slightly at the waist, and widening gradually to the floor. Duvier created one "at home" princess outfit in gold lame brocade, with sable cuffs on its three-quarter length sleeves. "Ideal," said a buyer at the show, "for doing the dinner dishes."

Openings of the fall collections began in New York's garment center this week and will continue through mid-June.

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Nelson, the Chicago Zephyrs No. 3 draft choice from Iowa, has signed his 1962-63 contract with the National Basketball Association club. The 6-6 Nelson averaged 23.8 points a game as a senior.

OPERATION DECOY—A New York police gimmick to catch would-be attackers and muggers comes up with these "prizes" from strolls in Central Park by disguised "Patrolmen Robert Crowley, 25, and Bruce Brennan, 24. Left: Crowley and Patrolman L. Fannello hold Fred Bailey, 50, who tried to attack Crowley. Right: Brennan has in tow one James Stitt, 40. Imagine their surprise!

MAKE YOUR OWN

SPICY CRUMBS both fill and top off this delicious yeast-raised coffee cake. The recipe is a really quick-and-easy one, requiring no kneading and only 45 minutes for rising.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

THERE'S nothing more satisfying than baking your own bread and your own cake. The first big reward of the job is the wonderful fragrance of fresh baking that fills the house.

Second Reward
The second is the pleasure of achievement when your treat is served. Interested in trying some bread and cake baking on your own? Here are two recipes to tempt you.

FRENCH BREAD

1 pkg. yeast, active dry or compressed
2 c. warm water
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
5 1/2 c. sifted flour
2 egg whites, unbeaten

Sprinkle or crumble yeast into warm water in warm bowl; stir until dissolved.

Add sugar, salt and 3 c. flour. Stir to mix, then beat until smooth and shiny.

Stir in 2 1/2 c. more flour. Sprinkle remaining 1/2 c. flour on bread board or pastry cloth. Turn dough out on flour.

Knead until satiny smooth, 5 to 7 min. Shape dough into round ball. Rub bowl lightly with shortening. Press top of ball of dough into greased bowl, then turn dough over. Cover with clean towel. Let rise until doubled, about 1 hr.

Punch down. Divide into halves. Shape each half into a ball. Cover and let stand 6 min.

Rub a little shortening on palms of hands. Then roll each ball of dough under the hands to form a long, slender loaf about 3 in. in diameter. Start rolling at the center and gently work hands toward ends of loaf. Do this several times to make well-shaped loaves. Place loaves 4 in. apart on lightly-greased baking sheet. With sharp knife cut diagonal slashes about 1/4 in. deep.

HOME-BAKED French bread is a change from conventional loaves. Serve plain or garlic-flavored and parsley-sprinkled.

and about 1 1/2 in. apart into top of each loaf.

Cover and let rise until a little more than doubled, about 1 hr.

Bake in moderately hot oven, 425° F., 30 to 35 min. Remove from oven. Brush with egg white. Return to oven for 2 min. Remove from baking sheet and cool on rack. Makes 2 loaves.

SPICY CRUMB COFFEE CAKE

1 1/2 c. milk
2 1/2 tsp. sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 c. margarine
2 c. warm water
2 pkgs. or cakes yeast, active dry or compressed

5 1/2 c. sifted enriched flour
1 tsp. cinnamon
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
Pinch of ginger
1/2 c. brown sugar
2 tsp. flour, sifted 1 tsp. cinnamon, additional 1 tsp. melted margarine, additional

1/2 c. chopped sugar, salt and margarine. Cool to lukewarm.

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble yeast into water; stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture and half of flour; beat until well mixed. Add remaining flour, cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger; beat until well mixed.

Cover; let rise in warm place free from draft until doubled in bulk, about 1 1/2 hr. Stir down; beat vigorously 1/2 min.

Drop spoonfuls of batter at random over bottom of 2 well-greased 8-in. round pans, using half the batter.

Combine brown sugar with remaining ingredients; sprinkle half of mixture over batter in pans. Let stand 15 min. Bake in moderate oven, 375° F., 35 to 40 min. or until well done. If desired, drizzle with confectioners' sugar frosting before serving. Makes 2 cakes.
